In 1994, Tom Lambrou made the big move to Atlanta to open his Landmark Diner in Buckhead. The main reason behind the move was that Atlanta was growing and the Olympics were on the way. Over the next seventeen years Tom Lambrou reaped the rewards of his hard work and was able to open several other Landmark Diners in Atlanta, including the Georgia State University “Downtown” location in 2003 and then the Cheshire Bridge “Jr.” location in 2006. Along with his son, Niko J. Lambrou - Chef Niko, and three nephews Niko G. Lambrou, Ari Thanos and George Saris, this team is building the Landmark Diner empire bigger and stronger.
